CHARLESTON, September 16.

The following anecdote is extracted from the Journal of the Patriots of 1789, by Real: "I could furnish some curious details respecting the rapid fortune accumulated by a certain brave Sans Culotte. Before the revolution he was a dealer in rabbit skins, and his wife retailed in the street three bottles of brandy, which her husband used to buy wholesale the evening before. This fortunate family, after having been concerned during the last three years in the purchase and sale of national land, to the value of several millions, is at present proprietor of one of the finest estates in the neighbourhood of Paris which is valued at several millions of ecus of 1790.—It were to be wished that Real had specified the sums. Several millions can scarce be less than 2,400,000, which reckoning the petit ecu of France at 8 to a pound sterling, will give us the enormous result of £. 300,000.

Mr. Pinckney, the American commissioner and colleague of Mr. Gore, was arrived in London from Virginia.

Doctor Nichols and John Anstey, Esquires, are appointed commissioners on the part of the king of Great-Britain.

The king had not appointed the commissioner on the Virginia debts.

Insurance at Lloyd's, when the Minerva sailed, was done at 3 guineas on American ships and property; but had been done at 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 guineas, in consequence of the capture of the Mount Vernon. Many of the richest and most cautious writers, would not write on American ships or property for several days.

Money was extremely scarce in England, and the trade much embarrassed. Many of the principal manufacturers had discharged the most of their hands, not being able to pay them their weekly wages, the consequence of the short remittance from America, and the many protested bills.

The losses sustained by the English, in the Mediterranean, are great; the fear of the capture of Lisbon, and of a Spanish war, caused great alarms, at Lloyd's, and among the mercantile part of the people.

Many considerable failures had taken place in London, and many more in Manchester, and other manufacturing towns.

ARMY OF ITALY.

Buonaparte, commander in chief of the army of Italy, to the executive directory.

"Head-Quarters at Castiglione, 19 Thermidor, August 6.

"Our military atchievements have succeeded one another so rapidly since the 11th, that I have found it impossible to transmit you an account of them before this time.

"A few days ago, the reinforcement of 20,000 men, which the Austrian army of the Rhine had sent to the army of Italy, arrived, which, united to the numerous recruits, and a very considerable number of battalions from the interior of Austria, rendered this army extremely formidable. The general opinion was, that the Austrians would soon be in possession of Milan. On the 11th, at 3 o'clock in the morning, general Massena's division was attacked by very numerous forces, and compelled to give up the important post of Corona. At the same time, a detachment of 15,000 Austrians surprised general Soret's division at Salo, and obtained possession of that important post. Guieux, general of brigade, with 600 men of the 15th demi-brigade of light infantry, shut themselves up in a very large house at Salo, and thence braved the efforts of the enemy, who surrounded their position. Rusca, general of brigade, was wounded.

"While a detachment of the enemy's division blocked up general Guieux at Salo, another proceeded to Brescia, surprised the French who were there, took four companies, whom I had stationed there for the defence of the place; 24 men belonging to the 25th regiment of chasseurs, two generals, and several officers of distinction, who remained on account of indisposition. General Soret's division, which was to have covered Brescia, retreated to Desenzano. In this dilemma, and pressed by a formidable army elated by their recent success, I felt the necessity of adopting some prompt and vigourous expedient. The enemy, in their descent from the Tyrolese by way of Brescia and the Adige, placed me in the centre of their force.—The republican army was too weak to make a stand against the enemy's two grand divisions; it might, however, engage them separately, and this mode of conduct seemed preferable, as my position was between these divisions. It was therefore possible, by a rapid retrogade movement, to surround the division on its march to Brescia, to take them prisoners, or defeat them, and thence return with equal celerity to the Mincio, at Wurmser, and oblige him to retreat to the Tyrolese; but in order to carry this project into effect, it would be necessary in 24 hours, to raise the siege of Mantua, which was on the point of being taken, as the garrison did not possess the means of defence for six hours longer. For the completion of this enterprise, it would be necessary to recross the plains of Mincio, and prevent the enemy's divisions from surrounding me. Fortune has favoured the enterprise, and the battle of Desenzano, the two battles of Salo, the engagement at Lonado, and the brilliant victory at Castiglione, are the effects of it.

"On the 12th, in the evening, all the divisions were on their march towards Brescia. The Austrian division, which had taken possession of that place, was now at Lonado.

"On the 13th, I ordered general Soret to repair to Salo, to relieve general Guieux, and general Dallemange to attack and retake Lonado at any price. Soret succeeded completely in extricating Guieux at Salo, after having beaten the enemy, taken two standards, two pieces of cannon, and about two hundred prisoners. General Guieux, and the troops under his command, had remained 48 hours without bread, continually fighting against the enemy.

"General Dallemange had not time to attack the enemy. He was in fact attacked himself. An action commenced of the most obstinate nature, and which was for a long time undecided; but I was tranquil: the brave 32d demi-brigade was there—In the end, the enemy was completely beaten.—They left 600 dead upon the field, and we took 900 prisoners.

"On the 14th, at noon, Angereau entered Brescia. We there found all our magizines, &c. which the enemy had not time to remove.

"On the 15th, the division of general Angereau returned to Monte Chiaro. Massena took post at Lonado and Pont St. Murco. I had left at Castiglione, general Valette with 1800 men. He was to defend that important post, and thereby to keep the division of general Wurmser at a distance from me. But on the 15th in the evening, general Valette abandoned the place, with half his troops only, and came to Monte Chiaro, to bring the alarm, saying, that the rest of his division were taken by the enemy. These brave troops, however, though abandoned by their general, made good their retreat to Pont St. Marco, instantly; and before his division, I suspended from his functions this general, who had already shewn want of courage at the attack of Corona.

"General Soret had also abandoned Salo. I ordered the brave general Guieux to go and retake this important position.

"On the 16th, at break of day, we found ourselves in presence of the enemy. General Guieux, with the left wing, was to attack Salo; general Massena, with the centre, was to attack Lonado, and general Angereau, with the right, was to bear down on Castiglione. The enemy did not wait our approach. They were first to attack the advanced guard of general Massena, which was at Lonado. It was surrounded; general Pigeon was made prisoner, and the enemy had taken from us three pieces of flying artillery.

"I rallied the 8th and 32d demi-brigades into a close column, and whilst they advanced to pierce through the enemy, the latter opened their files for the purpose of surrounding them.—This manœuvre of theirs gave me an assurance of victory. Massena contented himself with sending some riflemen to retard the enemy's wings on their their march. The column arrived at Lonado, and forced the enemy's position. The 15th regiment of dragoons attacked the Hulans, and retook our pieces of artillery. I ordered my aid-de-camp, Janot, to put himself at the head of my company of guides, to observe the enemy, to get before them if possible, Desenzano, and to oblige them by that means to retreat towards Salo.

On his arrival at Desenzano, he there found Col. Bender with a party of his regiment of Hulans, whom he attacked. Janot, not willing merely to cut off their rear, made a circuit with a part of his troop, took the regiment in front, wounded the colonel, and was about to take him prisoner, when he was himself surrounded. He killed six men with his own hand, but was at length overpowered, thrown into a ditch, and received 6 sabre wounds, of which I am given to hope none is mortal. The enemy effected their retreat to Salo; but finding that place in our power, this division wandered through the mountains, and was for the greater part taken.—During this time gen. Angerau attacked Castiglione took that place, and in the course of the day he sustained several obstinate actions with the enemy, who were double his number. Artillery and infantry all did their duty, and the enemy on this memorable day, was completely beaten on all sides. They lost 20 pieces of cannon, from two to three thousand men killed or wounded, and we made four thousand prisoners, amongst whom are three generals. We lost the gen. Beyrand. This loss is much felt by the army, and particularly by me. I esteemed most highly the warlike and the moral character of this brave man. Pourallier, chief of the 4th demi-brigade of infantry; Bourgon, chief of the first regiment of hussars, and Mermet, chief of the 22d regiment of chasseurs were also killed.—The 4th demi-brigade, at the head of which adjutant gen. Verdiere made his charge, was covered with glory.

"General Danimartin, who commanded the light artillery, displayed equal courage and ability.

"On the 17th, I ordered gen. D'Espinay to penetrate into the Tyrolese, by the road of Chiesa. He had previously to defeat 5 or 6000 of the enemy who were at Gavardo. Adjutant gen. Herbin had great success. He overthrew two of the enemy's battalions whom he found in his way, and reached as far as St. Ozeto Gen. D'Allimagne, at the head of a battalion of the 11th demi-brigade, marched to Gavardo, defeated the enemy, and made a great number of prisoners. But not being properly supported by the rest of his division, he was surrounded, and could not effect his retreat but by cutting his way through the enemy.

"I sent gen. Hilaire to Salo to act in concert with gen. Guieux, to attack the enemy's division at Gavardo, and to free the road into the Tyrolese. After a brisk action we defeated the enemy and made 1800 prisoners.

"On the whole of the 17th, Wurmser was employed in collecting the remains of his army, in bringing up his reserve, and drawing what reinforcements he could from Mantua. He then drew up an order of battle on the plain between the village of Scannelof, which supported his right, and Chiesa, which covered his left wing.

"The fate of Italy was not yet decided. The enemy collected an army of 25,000 men, a numerous cavalry, and seemed to leave the result in doubtful scales. On my side orders were given to concentrate all the divisions of the army.

"I hastened to Lonado to ascertain the number of troops that could be detached from it, but how great was my surprize, on arriving at that place to receive a deputation who had come to summon the governor to surrender, because said the officer it is completely invested, and cannot be relieved.

"From the pickets of cavalry I concluded that different columns were approaching our principal guard, and that the road from Brescia to Lonado was already intercepted at the bridge of St. Marco.

"I was then convinced that the communication could only be intercepted by the wrecks of the vanquished division, who having collected after the defeat were endeavouring to effect a passage.—The conjuncture was extremely embarrassing. At Lonado I had not above 1200 men; I ordered the messenger to be brought to me, and made him take the bandage off his eyes. I told him, that if his general had the effrontery to take the commander in chief of the army of Italy, he had only to advance; that he ought to know that I was at Lonado, as every one knew that the republican army was at place; that all the general officers belonging to the division should be responsible for the personal insult he had been guilty of towards me; and I assured him that if his division did not in the space of 8 minutes lay down their arms, I would not shew mercy to one of them.

"The messenger appeared confounded at finding me there, and in an instant the whole column laid down their arms. It consisted of 4000 men, two pieces of cannon, and some cavalry. It had come from Gervado, and was endeavouring to find a passage to effect their escape; having failed in their attempts to penetrate by way of Salo in the morning, they were now making a desperate effort to escape by Lonado.

"On the 18th, at day break, we were contiguous to each other, yet at six in the morning nothing was attempted. I ordered the whole army to make a retrogade movement, with a view of making the enemy approach, while general Serrurier's division, which I expected every moment, was marching from Marcaria, and then I hoped to turn general Wurmser's left wing.

"This movement had, in some degree, the desired effect. Wurmser extended his right wing to watch our rear. The moment that we perceived general Serrurier's division, under the command of general Florella, which attacked the left, I ordered adjutant general Verdier to attack a redoubt which the enemy had constructed in the middle of the plain, to support their left.

"I ordered my aid-de camp, Marmont, chief of battalion, to take the conduct of twenty pieces of light artillery, and compel the enemy, by them alone, to abandon this important post. After a smart and well directed cannonade, the left of the enemy was completely routed.

"General Angereau attacked the enemy's centre, which was pressed on the castle of Seaguello. Massena attacked the right. Adjutant-general Leclere, at the head of 5th demi-brigade, marched to the relief of the 4th demi-brigade.

"All the cavalry under general Beaumont acted on the right, in order to support the light artillery and infantry. We were every where victorious, and in all points our success exceeded our most sanguine expectations. We have taken from the enemy 18 pieces of cannon, and 120 caissons for ammunition. Their loss in killed and prisoners is about 2000 men, and the rest are flying in all directions: but our troops, harrassed by fatigue, could not pursue them above three leagues. Adjutant-general Froulin is killed. This gallant officer fell in front of the enemy.

"In five days another campaign is terminated! Wurmser has lost in that short interval 70 field pieces, all his caissons, between twelve and fifteen thousand men, who have been made prisoners, 6000 killed and wounded, and almost all the troops on their march from the Rhine.

To these losses may be added, a very considerable number of men dispersed throughout the country, some of whom we pick up daily, in our pursuit of the enemy. All the soldiers, officers and generals, in this arduous service, have universally displayed feats of conduct, courage and perseverance. I have to solicit the rank of general of brigade for adjutant-generals Verdier and Vignolles. To the exertions of the former we are, in a great degree, indebted for our success. At the battle of Castaglione, he had a horse shot under him.

"The latter, who is the oldest adjutant-general in the army, combines with the most steady and determined courage the most transcendant professional talents. I have likewise to request the rank of chief of battalion for Ballet; that of general of division for Dallemagne: general of brigade, and the rank of brigade in the artillery, for citizen Songis, chief of battalion.

Army of the Sambre and Meuse.

Kleber, general of division, commanding the right wing of the Sambre and Meuse, to the executive directory.

"Head-quarters, Adelsdorf, August 7.

"I had the honor of informing you, citizens directors, by my letter of the 3d inst. that the army was to march the next morning towards the Rednitz and the Upper Mayn, and by that of the 4th I announced to you the entry of the republican troops into Bamberg.

"General Lefebvre, who had taken a position behind the Upper Mayn and the river Itz, had orders to march a part of his troops towards Cobourg and Lichtenfels, in order to obtain the best information respecting the column which the enemy had detached to these points.

"I was soon informed that these troops, after remaining a short time in these two places, continued their route towards Egra; thus, having nothing to fear on this side, I did not hesitate immediately giving orders to two divisions on my left to cross the Rednitz, in order to proceed to Forcheim and Ebermanstadt, whilst the division on my right established themselves on the river Rauh Eberach. This movement was executed on the 6th, when a most bloody engagement took place between the cavalry of the enemy and that of the division of general Lefebvre. The enemy occupied a camp at Altendorf, and pushed their advanced posts from Strullendorf to a league and a half beyond Bamberg. The plain beyond this village was very extensive, and presented the greatest advantage to him who should employ the greatest number of cavalry. Under these circumstances the enemy anticipated the most brilliant success.

"In the mean time, however, the cavalry of general Lefebvre arrived; it was composed of three squadrons of the first regiment, of three of the ninth regiment of chasseurs, and of the eighth regiment of cuirassiers; they had scarce taken breath before they formed into a column, and gave signal of battle. They advanced with the greatest impetuosity on the village of Strullendorf, attacked and carried the first posts of the enemy, crossed the village of Herscherd, and appeared on the plain before an enemy far superior in numbers. Here they charged, and the enemy not being able to resist the first check, gave way and retreated in disorder, but soon profiting of their superiority, they fell upon our left, and threatened our flank. General Richpanse, who perceived it, advanced with some companies to meet them; the conflict now was most obstinate, and the confusion extreme; in the mean time each rallied at the voice of his commander, and were soon found at their proper stations.

"We charged a second time, and the enemy were about to carry the village, when Captain Prudhomme, of the first regiment of Chasseurs, by his voice, his courage and firmness, prevented this retrogade movement, and again rallied the troops to battle. Notwithstanding the valour of our troops, the enemy by a last attempt, had nearly determined the victory on their part, if in that instant the 8th regiment of Cuirassiers had not appeared. They advanced from the village of Herscheid with an impetuosity not to be described, revived the courage of the Chasseurs, fell upon the enemy, repulsed them and put them to flight. The Chasseurs soon took the advantage, they were for a moment about to lose, and pursued the enemy, who, to prevent our pursuit, fired without distinction upon their troops and ours, both from musquetry and from the artillery which they had placed at the village of Altendorff to protect their retreat.

"General Lefebvre, having obtained his object, put an end to the action, and contented himself with making the troops of the division which had begun to defile, take, under the fire of his artillery, the ground which he had ordered them to occupy.

"Whilst this was passing on the right, a body of troops, both infantry and cavalry, detached from his division, turned the mountains and marched silently towards Ebermanstadt, which they were to attack on the following day.

"The division of Genera Collaud took post in the second line under the walls of Bamberg.

"The three divisions of the right, under the orders of Generals Grenier, Championnet, and Bernadotte, marched to the right, and took post behind the river Rauh Eberach, their left being supported by Reduitz, and their right by Schlunenfeld. The enemy had thrown some battalions and squadrons into the villages near the mouth of the Rauh Eberach.

"General Grenier, wishing to chase them from thence, and to take their position, gave orders for that purpose to Olivier, general of brigade, who after an obstinate battle of more than three hours, succeeded in routing the enemy, and pursued them as far as the wood of Cent Bukhoven.—The troops under the orders of this General fought with the greatest courage.

"The enemy took a position on the right bank of the Rednitz, between Ebermanstadt and Forcheim; and on the left, between Forcheim and Hockstet. To-morrow we shall attack them at all points, and the success we obtained yesterday is to us the presage of victory.

"Health and respect,
(Signed) "KLEBER."

The commander in chief, par interim, of the army of the Sambre and Meuse, to the executive directory.

"Head-Quarters, Adeldorff, 21 Thermidor, August 8.

"By my letter of yesterday, I had the honour to inform you, that my plan was to attack the enemy on the two banks of the Rednitz, between Ebermunstadt and Hockstet. For this purpose the division of General Lefebvre advanced towards Wisent, and driving every thing before him on the right bank, took post before Frugendorff; but the enemy occupying this post of Ebermanstadt, with 900 cavalry, 1200 infantry, and some pieces of artillery. Lefebvre sent adjutant general Mortier, with one battalion. four squadrons, and two field pieces to attack them.

"This he executed with so much alertness, that after an engagement of an hour the enemy was compelled to relinquish the post. The General, finding himself thus master of the two banks of the river, was enabled on the same day to send forward his patroles even to the rear of the enemy.

"The division under the orders of general Colaud received orders to quit his position at Bamberg and to march towards Forcheim and to drive before him or destroy whatever force he may find on the plain, or covering that place.

"The enemy was still in force on the plain and on the surrounding heights, and general Wartensleben commanded there in person.

"The advanced guard of general Colaud, commanded by adjutant-general Ney, was received by a discharge of 14 pieces of cannon. He had but two to oppose to them, yet he did not lose his firmness, but combining stratagem with valor, he succeeded after a few charges, in routing the enemy from their first position. Gen. Colaud brought up some reinforcements to this officer, by which he was enabled to force the Austrians to enter into Forcheim, and to advance his posts as far as the river.

Gen. Colaud summoned the commander of the place to open his gates to the republican troops, as soon as they arrived within cannon shot. Adjutant Ney was sent with the summons, who availing himself of the consternation which the sudden retreat of the Austrians had excited, demanded instantly a parley. The commander expressed his willingness to surrender as soon as the Austrians were so far removed as not to occasion any disturbance. The French officer insisted, and the commander agreed to surrender. We found in this place 20 pieces of cannon, and a great quantity of arms and ammunition.

"The division of gen. Grenier quitted his camp at Ribersdorff behind the Raun Eberach, and ascending by the left bank of the Rednitz, established himself after a short but brisk action on the heights behind the river Aich.

"The division of gen Championet almost at the same instant defiled by Lauff, towards the river Aich. All the villages on the two banks were occupied by the Hungarian infantry, and protected by a great number of artillery placed on the heights. These villages were attacked with impetuosity, but the resistance of the enemy was obstinate. Some of the posts were carried three times; and as often abandoned. At last the bayonet alone was employed, and the enemy took to flight, after having suffered a considerable loss.

"Gen. Kray who commanded this division of their army, fixed all his attention on the attack and direction of this column, because here the fire of the musketry and artillery was most violent. But while he was considering his manœuvre, the column under gen. Berdanotte advanced against Hochstet, but without attacking it, that he may give time to the division of cavalry under gen. Bonneau, (who had received orders to pass the river, and to turn the left flank of the enemy) to begin their operations.

"All this was executed with the greatest intelligence and precision, and the enemy's general, who did not expect this manœuvre, immediately became undecided in all his movements. Of this indecision the generals Bernadotte, Bonneau, and Championet knew how to profit, and he was forced, after repeated charges of cavalry and infantry, to effect his retreat. He however protected it by a heavy fire of artillery, which was answered by ours with its accustomed efficacy, and succeeded to throw the Austrians into the greatest disorder.

"The van guard of the 3 divisions instantly pursued them, and without giving them time to rally, compelled them to pass the Rednitz, from which they withdrew the bridges. General Klein took his position on the bank of this river.

"The enemy according to the report of all the general officers, had the greater body of cavalry, but all our corps combated with so much valour, the generals and commanders of divisions directed and executed their manœuvres with so much wisdom, that all obstacles were overcome, and nothing could resist them.

"The enemy's loss was very great both in infantry and cavalry, and we took a hundred prisoners, sixty of which were mounted, and one officer. The advanced posts of the different divisions were extended beyond the river-Aich, and the patroles and parties pushed on to that of Aurach. According to the reports I have received, the enemy must retire with all speed to Nuremberg. General Lefebvre will to-day proceed with a party to Graffenberg.

"It is in this state, citizen directors, that I now restore to general Jourdan, who is returned to the army, the command which was entrusted to me.

(Signed) "KLEBER."

SUMMARY.

From the (New-York) MINERVA.

In addition to the articles under foreign heads, we find that several of the princes of Germany had assembled at Ratisbon to consult on making peace: that the landgrave of Hesse has opened negociations for a separate peace: that the French general Laborde has taken possession of the city and lake of Constance, and has effected a junction with a column of the army of Italy: that a division of general Kleber has taken possession of a part of the city of Ratisbon, and the members of the diet unfriendly to the French, had fled to Passau & Lintz: that a division of Lefebvre occupied the road to Leipsic, his advanced guard within 7 leagues: that the elector of Mentz has quitted Erfruth, and retired to Dresden: that the application of the circle of Suabia, by deputation to general Moreau for an armistice, was successful, under the mediation of the duke of Wirtemberg and the king of Prussia: that a part of the troops which had taken possession of Leghorn, had been ordered to join the besiegers of Mantua: that 24,000 men are on their march from La Vendee to reinforce the armies in Germany: that the Prussian king has caused negociations to be opened for peace between France and Saxony: that to retaliate on the French for the seizure of English property in Leghorn, several British ships of war had entered the port of Genoa, threatening to bombard the city, if they did not give up the effects of the French in that city: that the French have demanded of Genoa to place a garrison there, and an entire exclusion of English vessels from that port.

An article under the Paris head of August 8th, states, that "it appears to be certain that we have just concluded with Spain a treaty of offensive and defensive alliance." The Eclair also gives as report, that terms of peace with the emperor were actually drawing up at that moment.

The French directory have positively refused to recognise Mr. De Rehausen as charge d'affairs for Sweden; assuring the minister, baron de Stael, at the same time, of their "sentiments of affection."

Buonaparte has caused the duke d'Aosta, the king of Sardinia's son, to be arrested—has placed a garrison in Turin, and demolished the fort of Dumont, because he attempted to excite the people against the French. (L'Ami des Loix.)

There has been an insurrection at Geneva, the Magistrates have been dismissed, and the French ministers invited by the people to act in their name provisionally. The French papers call this a "revolutionary movement."

The bombardment of Mantua began July 16.

Some alarm prevailed at Hamburg for fear of a visit from the French—many principal merchants were removing their effects.

DUELLING.

The practice of Duelling will assuredly at length go into contempt, were it only for the absurd and ridiculous instances of it which so frequently occur. Last week a topping cow-keeper near Tothil fields, challenged an eminent nightman in Duck-lane. They met by appointment in the nightman's yard; where, after many vollies of rascals, blackguards, and dirty scoundrels had been exchanged, the seconds, a scavenger and a drayman, interfered, the point of honour was amicably settled, the champions fired their pistols in the air, and left the field as gentlemen of spirit and undoubted courage. This rencontre suggested the following epigram:

TWO dunghill cocks we thus have seen,
Full stately strutting on the green,
Erect their heads with mutual scorn,
In quarrel for a barley corn;
With levell'd beaks remain a while,
Without advancement or recoil,
'Till gradually their plumes subside,
And each seems fully satisfied;
Then round they wheel, and chuckling fain,
Return to scratch the dirt again.

And egad, as Bayes says, this epigram will do for almost any other duel, at least for nine out of ten.

District of Pennsylvania, to wit:

BE it remembered, that on the seventeenth day of September, in the twenty-first year of the independence of the United States of America, William Mitchell, of the said district, deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as author, in the words following, to wit:

"A new and complete system of book-keeping, by an "improved method of double entry, adapted to retail, do- "mestic and foreign trade; exhibiting a variety of trans- "actions which usually occur in business. The whole "comprised in three sets of books; the last set being a copy "of the second, according to those systems most generally "in use, is given in order to exhibit, by a comparative "view, the advantages of the system now laid down. Mr. FRANCIS,

TAKES this opportunity of returning thanks to his scholars and to the public. Mr. Francis intends, on his return from Maryland, to open a public academy for dancing, upon a plan entirely new. He flatters himself that his attention to his pupils hitherto renders any promises of conducting his future schemes on the most liberal and strictest terms, of propriety, totally unnecessary.

Treaſury of the United States.

NOTICE is hereby given to all perſons who are or may be Creditors of the United States, for any ſums of the Funded Debt, or Stock, bearing a preſent intereſt of ſix per centum per annum.

1ſt, That purſuant to an Act of Congreſs paſſed on the 28th day of April, 1796, intitled an act in addition to an act, intituled "An act making further proviſion for the ſupport of public credit, and for the redemption of the public debt," the ſaid debt or ſtock will be reimburſed and paid in manner following, to wit. "Firſt, by dividends "to be made on the laſt days of March, June and Septem- "ber for the preſent year, and from the year one thouſand "ſeven hundred and ninety-ſeven, to the year one thou- "ſand eight hundred & eighteen inclusive, at the rate of "one and one half per centum upon the original capital. "Secondly, by dividends to be made on the laſt day of "December for the preſent year, and from the year one "thouſand ſeven hundred and ninety-ſeven, to the year "one thouſand eight hundred and ſeventeen inclusive, at "the rate of three and one half per centum upon the ori- "ginal capital; and by a dividend to be made on the laſt "day of December, in the year one thouſand eight hun- "dred and eighteen, of ſuch ſum, as will be then ade- "quate, according to the contract, for the final redemp- "tion of the ſaid ſtock."

2d. All diſtinction between payments on account of Intereſt and Principal being thus aboliſhed by the eſtabliſhment of the permanent rule of reimburſement above deſcribed, it has become neceſſary to vary accordingly the powers of attorney for receiving dividends; the public creditors will therefore obſerve that the following form is eſtabliſhed for all powers of attorney which may be granted after the due promulgation of this notice, viz.

50,000	Tickets, at Eight Dollars,		400,000

N. B. To favour thoſe who may take a quantity of Tickets, the prize of 40,000 dollars will be the LAST drawn ticket, and the 30,000 the LAST but ONE:

And approved notes, ſecuring payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not leſs than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant ſpecimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Waſhington—Two beautiful deſigns are already ſelected for the entire fronts on two of the public ſquares; from theſe drawings it is propoſed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as ſoon as poſſible after this lottery is ſold, and to convey them, when compleat, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner deſcribed in the ſcheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the neceſſary expenſes of printing, &c. and the ſurplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National Univerſity, to be erected within the city of Waſhington.

The Drawing will commence as ſoon as the tickets are ſold off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finiſhed; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is cloſed, are to be conſidered as given towards the fund for the Univerſity; it being determined to ſettle the whole buſineſs in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as ſecurity.

The real ſecurities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the Preſident and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commiſſioners aſſiſted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requeſted to undertake this arduous taſk a ſecond time on behalf of the public; a ſufficient number of theſe having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National Univerſity and the other federal objects may continue to favor the deſign.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been ſent for ſale, the public are aſſured that the drawing will ſpeedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably neceſſary to inſure a ſafe diſpoſal of the tickets, has rendered the more ſuſpenſion indiſpenſable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

☞ Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; of James Weſt & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boſton of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells Cooper's Ferry. eo
